INITIATIVE LISTS DUE JULY 5.

Will Not Receive Attention After That Date, Secretary Roach Says.

The time for filing petitions under the initiative and referendum law of this state will expire next week. Secretary of State Cornelius Roach is advised the single tax petitions will be presented Friday, but it is not known when the other petitions will be ready for filing.

Among the petitions in circulation are the four Republican lists under the heading of workingmen's compensation act, home rule police law, senatorial redistricting law, and a home rule liquor law. The single taxers are submitting an amendment of their own, providing ultimately for the exemption of all personal property and putting the entire tax on land values. A petition also is being circulated to place the proposition of woman suffrage on the November ballot.

Another petition provides for amending a section of the state constitution so as to permit counties and cities to make gifts and donations to private individuals if they choose to do so.

All petitions must be filed four months before the general election day. This will be July 4, which, being a legal holiday, will result in extending the time to July 5, although Secretary Roach is disposed to insist that the petitions should be filed July 3.

"There are prospects for ten or a dozen measures going on the official ballot this year under the provisions of the 'initiative law,'" said Mr. Roach today. "The last day for legal filing is near. All interests backing the various measures to be submitted seem to be delaying the presentation of their petitions to the secretary of state till the last hour of the last day.

"Unnecessary delay may cause some of these proposed measures to lose a place on the official ballot, as I propose to take a sufficient and reasonable time to discharge the duty that rests upon me in this connection and pass upon the legal sufficiency of all petitions submitted before filing any on any proposed subject.

"Petitions submitted the last legal filing day will not necessarily be filed on that date unless found in proper form. Reasonable time will be required and taken to determine these facts before the documents will be filed."

Spoke at Normal.

Rev. Claud J. Miller of the Christian church delivered an address to the members of the Normal Y. M. C. A. Thursday, taking for his subject "The Problems of the College Man."

WAS 96 AT 2 P. M.

MERCURY POINTED THERE THIS AFTERNOON.

HOTTEST DAY OF SUMMER

A Good Rain Looked For by Evening —Things Are Mighty Hot Politically and Weatherly.

Today is the hottest day of the summer, and as the summer has only commenced, indications point to many sweltering days during the heated period of 1912.

Last year this section of the United States was visited by torrid summer, and although the season began earlier in 1911, yet there can be no doubt that in torridness this year of political upheavals will not be behind the placid months of 1911.

Today the morning was quite warm, but as the sun neared the middle of the heavens the temperature grew oppressively hot, and at 12 o'clock the thermometer registered 95, although it was only 61 at 7 o'clock and 87 at 10 o'clock. At 2 o'clock this afternoon it was 96.

The mercury yesterday went to 94 degrees above zero.

Local weather prophets say that the intense heat of today will bring a shower, and it is to be hoped that these prognostications are correct. A good shower would be welcome. All vegetation needs moisture, and there will be none who will find fault if we get a good rain late this afternoon or this evening.

WILSON PUT IT OVER

NEW JERSEY EXECUTIVE TAKES FALL OUT OF MISSOURIAN.

SEN. JAMES IS CHAIRMAN

Convention Adjourned to 8 o'Clock When Nominations for President Will Take Place.

To Meet at 8 o'Clock.

The convention adjourned at 3:45 p. m., to meet at 8 o'clock this evening, when nominating speeches will be made and balloting for candidates will start.

James as Chairman.

The report of the permanent organization committee was adopted and Ollie James of Kentucky selected as permanent chairman of the convention. While Mr. James was going after President Taft for vetoing the Democratic tariff Mrs. Taft, who was present at the convention, smiles. An indirect reference to Bryan by Chairman James caused an ovation.

Not a Part of United States.

John Sharp Williams of Mississippi raises point of order that Philippine islands are not entitled to representation in the convention, as the islands are not a part of the United States. Point of order was sustained by the convention.

Seated Wilson Delegates.

At 3 p. m., at Baltimore, the minority report of the credentials committee was adopted by a vote of 629 to 415. This seated the Wilson delegates from South Dakota, or ten in number. The Illinois and New York delegations voted solidly for adoption, showing indication of switch to Wilson.

Convention Called to Order.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Baltimore, Md., June 27.—The convention was called to order today by Chairman Alton B. Parker at 12:44. Roland B. Harris of Philadelphia presented the minority report of credentials committee to seat Wilson delegates from South Dakota, the committee having decided at a meeting held last night by a majority vote, to seat the ten Clark delegates from South Dakota.

Ex-Governor McCorkle of West Virginia led the debate against the minority report of South Dakota.

Congressman Theodore Bell of California, temporary chairman of the last Democratic convention held at Baltimore, again exposes Bryan by making closing argument for majority report of credentials committee on South Dakota contests. Mr. Bell was interrupted by a demonstration started in the galleries.

Governor Cochran, who is vigorously supporting Champ Clark for president, says that the ten delegates from South Dakota should have been for Clark instead of Wilson. Cochran is interrupted in his address by Congressman Henry of Texas. Governor Cochran concludes his address at 1:13 p. m., and Congressman Henry yields to delegates from Texas.

The convention hall was crowded long before the convention was called to order. The weather was very hot and it was cloudy.

After credentials committee fight on South Dakota contests is settled, the next order of business will be the report of the committee on permanent organization, electing the permanent officers of the convention. Ollie James of Kentucky has been selected by the committee for this place and will probably be selected by the convention.

It is expected that nominating speeches will be late this afternoon or tonight.

At the afternoon session of the convention Mrs. W. H. Taft, wife of President Taft, attended the convention and was the guest of Mrs. Norman Mack of New York. Mrs. Taft received quite an ovation when she entered the convention hall.

At 1:26 p. m. Mr. Lamcharch of Louisiana speaks, and concludes amid loud cries of "vote, vote, vote." J. E. Bell of Indiana, chairman of credentials committee, speaks and is followed by J. D. Knox of Minnesota.

The convention was in great disorder. A Wilson demonstration was started, and many delegates paraded around the hall with Wilson banners and cries of "Give us Wilson and we will give you Minnesota and New York."

A rival boom for Clark was started, but not as enthusiastic as the Wilson boom, and results in fight floor. Underwood delegates join in tumult and New York delegates split, a portion joining Wilson parade.

The police stop fight quickly of delegates of rival candidates from opposition parades. State standards were torn from the floor and carried to rallying points.

Cries for Bryan being raised in all sections of the galleries during the uproar in the convention.

The demonstration continued twenty-three minutes. Woman attempts to start another by parading through aisles with Clark banners, but it fails.

Galleries and delegates hissed Bell of California down and he did not complete his statement. The roll call on the minority report was ordered.

Convention News Tonight.

Nominations will be made late this afternoon or tonight at Baltimore, and The Democrat-Forum will receive bulletins of the news.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED, WHO WILL NOMINATE CHAMP CL[illegible]

STONE VS. BR[illegible]

MISSOURI SENATOR MA[illegible] LATED VOTE AGAINST COMM[illegible]

IN CLARK'S INTEREST

Not Regarded as Reactionary Movement—A Bid for New York Support of Missouri's Candidate.

The Republic's special correspondence from Baltimore contains the following, which is of special interest to the friends of Champ Clark:

"Impartial analysis demonstrates that the Parker majority does not mean a 'reactionary' majority. It has failed simply because 228 delegates from Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, Alaska and the District of Columbia, who are instructed for Clark, voted for Parker.

"This was brought about deliberately by Clark's managers, who divided their votes between the candidates for the chairmanship. It was a strategical move, designed both to aid the speaker's nomination and to hold the party together.

"Missouri gave 22 to Parker and 14 to Bryan. Stated in terms of cold politics, Senator Stone, by thus casting nearly two-thirds of the state's 36 votes for the conservative candidate, made a deliberate 'bid' for New York's support for Clark in the later stages of the convention. There is every reason to believe the bid was not [illegible] away and that in due time Murphy will cast 90 votes for Clark.

A Strategic Move.

"But viewed more broadly, Missouri's action does not mean that two-thirds of Missouri's delegates are non-progressive. In fact, the Missourians, when assured of Clark's success, will co-operate to put him upon the most progressive platform that can be devised. Despite the rejection of Bryan by the convention the Missouri leaders desire his election as chairman of the resolutions committee.

"What was true of Missouri was true of many other of the Clark delegates included in the 228 mentioned. The Clark delegations from Iowa, Colorado and Utah divided evenly. Massachusetts and West Virginia delegates divided almost evenly, and practically all the Clark states split on the vote.

Says Clark Is Probable.

"In the event of Champ Clark's nomination, which last night seemed probable, the convention is expected to look to New York for his running mate.

"Quite a little talk for William Randolph Hearst has been heard, but Mr. Hearst himself declares that he doesn't want and would not accept second place. He is here with a fleet of journalists and political lieutenants, all working in the interest of Clark, and this gave rise to the story that the newspaper publisher was seeking second honors.

"William J. Gaynor, Tammany's choice for the presidency, is considered vice presidential timber by some delegations.

"Justice D. D. O'Gorman is another New Yorker whose name is frequently mentioned.

"John W. Kern of Indiana would not be averse to making the race again, and his action in refusing to get into the temporary chairmanship of the fight rather indicates his willingness to run. Thomas R. Marshall of the same state, one of the 'favorite sons' for the presidency, is also in the list of availables."

Returned From Auto Trip.

Mrs. Frank L. Garrett and her sisters, Misses Gertrude and LaVera Condon, returned Wednesday night from a several days' visit near Fairfax with their cousin, Mrs. Jay Cook, and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Long. They made the trip to and from Fairfax with A. O. Mason, who went to deliver a new car to their cousin Mr. Cook. Mr. Mason sold several cars while there.

Merrill Christy Is Better.

Mrs. W. B. Christy received a telegram Thursday morning stating that Christy, who was called to Little Rock, Ark., Sunday night, stating that his son, Merrill Christy, was better and that he had spent a good night. The young man has typhoid fever and his father will remain with him until he is out of danger.

News of Brother's Death.

Mrs. Mary J. Honnold received a telegram Thursday afternoon announcing the death of her brother, Dr. Allen Duncan Sherman MacArthur, at his home in New Lexington, O., this Thursday morning. Dr. MacArthur was 75 years old and had practiced medicine at New Lexington for forty-five years. He was a soldier during the civil war, as captain of a battery of light artillery.

Chinch Bug and Its Control.

The chinch bug is busy again this summer in west central and central Missouri, collecting its annual dues from the farmers. Now is the time for the farmer to rebel; not a week or two later, but today. They have already sapped much of the wheat and rye of that region and are now on foot, the old ones as well as the pesky young "red coats," moving into the corn fields. If they succeed in reaching the corn fields they will continue to lay waste to these, and later give rise to a second regiment of young "red coats" which in turn will continue to feed and mature by frosts, when they hide in rubbish, corn shocks and deep down in the clumps of grass in meadows, pastures and waste lands. Here they sleep until next spring, when they will re-appear in even greater numbers than this year.

Now is the time to act! Throw up barriers in front of their line of march. Plow a strip ten or fifteen feet wide and thoroughly pulverize it to form a fine dust mulch. This serves as an excellent barrier, though it is well to run over this each day with a drag to make sure none cross. A deep furrow in which a log is dragged is also good. In case of rain run a narrow line of tar or road oil as a barrier and trap them in post holes. By all means keep them from the corn. If they have already gotten into corn and are clustered on the first few rows, destroy them either by spraying with coal oil emulsion or soak cobs in oil, light them and use as a torch to flash up and down the stalks, thereby burning them. In severe cases it may be necessary to give up a portion of the field and establish a barrier some distance in front of them out in the field. Don't throw up your hands and give over the corn field to them without a struggle. Forget about the chinch bug disease, for it cannot help you unless the weather is favorable and the spores of the disease are present by the millions in your field already waiting for warm, rainy weather. Then this fall co-operate in carrying out a systematic burning of all fields and waste lands where the bugs are collected for the winter.

Heart Hunter

By Isola Forrester

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Russell did not look up at the schoolhouse window when he drew rein. He knew that she could see him from her desk, and the outer door was wide open. It was well after four, and all the children had vanished down the four roads leading from the schoolhouse corner. They were quite alone, if one excepted the red squirrel who was tenant for life in the elm that was king of the playground.

It was half a mile to the nearest farmhouse. All about lay June fields, rich in lush grass ready almost for mowing. The air was golden, warm, hazy, lazy, wooing one to forget duty and day's work. Russell was heavily burdened with both at present. As superintendent of schools in Laverne county, it devolved on his shoulders to let the teacher go at the little Flaxy Bend district, because of inattention to duty and general laxity of conduct.

That was exactly the wording of the charges in Mrs. Deacon Mabry's letter that reposed in his coat pocket. He didn't intend to show it to the girl.

So simple it seemed, so hard it was to do. He had fought against it for nearly a week, remembering her upturned, earnest face, so warm and tender in its brunette tinting, the big, brown eyes, and childish mouth that drooped wistfully at the corners, the dark hair bound smoothly around the small head, with a big, black velvet bow on one side. That bow had been an offense to the enemy even, at least on one side.

"She ain't stiddy enough to teach," old Mrs. Mabry had insisted. "I taught considerable after Myron and me were married, but I was stiddy. It's a known fact that she's settled four of the boys this winter."

"Settled them? You mean expelled them?"

"No, I don't, Mr. Russell. I mean just what I say. She's carried on girl-fashion with Nate Hoskins and

"I'm Afraid They Don't Like Me Very Well—Do They?"

Benny Everitt and Walter Bennings, and even with Lonnie Murray, and they've every one of them lost their heads over her and proposed, and she's refused them all."

"Well?" Russell tried to speak mildly, remembering the various attractions of the aforesaid four boys, "maybe she didn't intend to have them take her seriously, Mrs. Mabry."

"And if she didn't, then she's light-minded, and a heart hunter, if I do say it myself, Mr. Russell. That's what we always used to call them, heart hunters, and their minds don't go any further than hunting them, and letting them go as soon as they're caught."

Russell remembered the whole conversation now as he stepped into the little shadowy schoolroom, low-ceiled, cool, with fern boxes at the windows and bunches of June roses on the desks. Rose was her name, too, he remembered—Rose Phillips. She turned her head now, a quick smile of welcome and surprise on her face.

"Did you come to wish me good-by?" she asked.

Russell could not help but smile back. He laid his cap on one of the first row desks and stood looking at her as he drew off his gloves. She could not have been over eighteen. In spite of what the school committee had reported, he knew that the little school had made actual progress under her care and tuition during the past term. He knew the children loved her dearly. The little room itself bore witness to her influence. It had been a barren place before her coming. A few old yellowed maps hung on the walls. There was a wheezy melodeon in one corner, with most of the ivory off the keys and one pedal broken. The stove was a little, inadequate drum affair, with three legs to stand on.

Since her coming the whole place had been changed. The children had given little entertainments and earned money for a new stove, for new globes and window boxes, and little fresh muslin curtains at the windows. At the school examinations they had led the other township schools, and before her days, Flaxy Bend district had been a problem in education.

"Yes," said Russell, with almost a sigh, "I came to say good-by."

She waited a minute, chin raised, eyes questioning.

"Where did you tell me your home was, Miss Phillips?" he asked, leaning over the top of the tall desk, and fingering a pink rose that was nearest to him.

"Vermont. It's only a little ... who's place where the ... r bro... ar... are flagged. W... Maryvil... Crossing."

"I suppose yo... acme."

"Not so very," ... tantly, with a li... shoulders. "You see, I have a stepfather, and I am the only child from the first marriage, and there are seven little ones now besides. They don't miss me a bit, unless it's a good miss."

"Why did you come way down here in the country?"

"Because I was in a hurry to go to work. The city schools won't take you unless you've been through Normal, you know. I like it out here. The work was hard, but the victory was so much greater, and I do think the children love me."

Russell caught the little wistful touch in her voice.

"The old folks are peculiar, aren't they? Hard to get along with."

"I'm afraid they don't like me very well—do they?"

"They say you're a good teacher, but—"

Rose waited and looked up at him quickly. Her brown hair was very near, with its soft satiny braids. Before he really meant to, he had tucked the pink rose among them.

"It looks much better there," he added, and wondered why his own pulses were racing suddenly, like brooks in April.

"But what? Please—please tell me?" she pleaded, drawing back, but not removing the rose. "What do they say?"

"They say you're a heart hunter."

She leaned back her head and sighed, her hands clasped back of the rose, her eyes looking past him out of the first open window.

"They mean the boys, I suppose, Nate and the rest. Could I help it? Now, truly, could I, Mr. Russell? You know just what boys are. They'd come here every day, and bring all sorts of things to me that I didn't want. Why, Lonnie even used to bring me fox pelts for a cloak, of all things. Boys are always boys, and they get over it so quickly. I was just as nice to them as I could be."

"I am not blaming you—nor them," said Russell a bit unsteadily. "Only I agree with the deacon's wife that you are a very dangerous and disturbing influence to have around these peaceful parts."

The tears glistened in her eyes. "Oh, you don't really mean that?" she said pleadingly. "Are you trying to tell me I cannot teach here again?"

Russell stared awkwardly down at her head, as she leaned it on folded arms, and her shoulders shook with sobs.

"I've tried so hard, and the children all love me," she said brokenly. "I didn't want to go back home at all. I was going to board here all summer, and rest—"

Then suddenly it dawned on Neil Russell why he had driven ten miles that afternoon to make all fit and due explanations to the teacher instead of writing. He knew just why he had thought of nothing but her tender lips and dark eyes and low contralto voice for weeks past. He knew why he had saved every scrap of writing she had ever sent him, and why he carried in an inner pocket a little tan suede glove he had found beside her chair after a board meeting one day. Oh, yes, he knew now, and he imprisoned both her hands in his and raised them to his lips.

"Rose," he said. "Stop crying. I've brought you another heart, dear."

She stopped sobbing, but did not raise her head.

"I haven't any one in the world myself. I came up here from New York and got along well. There's enough saved in the bank to buy us a good home in the fall. I think I could make you happy, Rose, if I may wear you, dear."

"What would you tell the deacon's wife and—and—all the rest?" she asked faintly.

"That I had to dismiss you because I couldn't let my wife work," he whispered. "Won't that do for a good excuse?"

REFUSED THE CHAIRMANSHIP

BRYAN THINKS COMMITTEE JOB A TRAP.

Leaders Surprised at Action of Nebraskan—Senator Kern of Indiana Given the Place.

Baltimore, June 27.—An attempt by the conservative forces, now in control, to swing William J. Bryan into line by making him chairman of the resolutions committee, which is drafting a platform, failed. Not only did Bryan refuse, but he made it plain in refusing that he feared the committee had been packed.

Cautious advisers of the Nebraskan argued against his accepting the chairmanship on the ground that the attempt to have him draft the platform was a poorly concealed plot to commit him in advance to the subsequent act of the convention and to any nominee willing to accept what would be known as the "Bryan platform."

The leaders were plainly disconcerted by the action of Bryan. This disconcertion became chagrin when Bryan told his lieutenant, Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, that he had refused the honor because he "intended to play national, not ward, politics."

When the full committee assembled Bryan said he had not refused the charmanship with any desire to disturb harmony.

"I acted," he said, "rather in the interests of harmony."

Ex-Congressman Fithian of Illinois then suggested that Senator Kern the Indiana representative on the committee, be elected. Kern at first was going to refuse also, but finally consented to serve and he was unanimously chosen with T. J. Walsh of Colorado as secretary. The committee immediately went into executive session to prepare the platform.

Prison for Suffragettes.

London, June 27.—The three suffragettes who smashed the glass door panels in St. Stephen's hall while trying to gain admission to the house of commons were sentenced by the police magistrate each to two months' imprisonment.

Youthful Bigotry.

"There is a thoughtful boy in an Antrim village who listened one Sunday to a statement made by his Sunday school teacher that God had created all things, and all men. 'Did God,' he asked, at last, 'make the Papists?' He had been taught to reverence the Almighty, and it seemed impossible that He could have been guilty of that. The teacher assured him that God had really made even them. The boy pondered the information for a minute, and then gave his opinion briefly and forcibly. 'He'll rue it yet,' he said."—"The Lighter Side of Irish Life," by George A. Birmingham.

The Reason.

"He makes but a bald attempt at a living."

"How is that?"

"He is a hair specialist."

No Question About That.

Wabash Invests $150,000.00 in New Shop Machinery.

The Wabash has purchased a large number of modern machine tools to be installed at their main shops at Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Springfield, Ill., and Moberly, Mo.

These tools are of the latest designs, consisting of large locomotive driving wheels lathes, turret lathes of different sizes, vertical boring mills, etc. Modern 96-inch, 600-ton hydraulic driving wheel presses. Rapid production horizontal milling machine to be used for the manufacturing of locomotive connecting rods for the entire system. Oxy-acetylene welding plants will be installed at all main shops.

In connection with the purchase of this machinery, it is interesting to note what the Bowman-Blackman Machine Tool Co. of St. Louis has to say:

"The Wabash railroad has just purchased a large lot of machine tools. The way the deal was handled by the Wabash has drawn much favorable comment in the machine tool trade. Enough time was taken to investigate right, all sellers were given courteous and attentive hearings, and the orders were placed on a basis of the machines' earning power alone.

"This course is in marked contrast to that still followed in some railroad quarters of buying machines in "lump" like so much lumber, from the one or two houses that can bid that way; of ignoring the elemental facts of machine efficiency values, squelching initiative in shop men, and getting the resentment of the competent machine tool houses thus shut out.

"As usual the Wabash is to the front in advanced ideas. This machine tool incident is one more constructive move to the credit of the liberal ... ed, alert and far-seeing men ... bank, the Wabash."

GREAT AUK'S VALUABLE EGG

One Recently Sold at Auction in London for $1,500—Bird Is Now Extinct.

An egg of the great auk, or garefowl, a bird now extinct, was sold at auction in London for a sum equivalent to $1,500.

Not all great auk's eggs are alike. In length they vary from four and one-eighth inches to five inches. The greater number found have a white ground, but others are of various shades of buff. In some cases the markings are spots, shown in blotches or lines.

It is said that no living auk has been seen since 1844. The birds were exterminated by the ruthless traffic in their eggs and skins, although their numbers, especially on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts, where once they were very numerous, were greatly reduced by their wholesale slaughter for food.

The most remarkable characteristic of the great auk was it inability to fly. Its wings were scarcely more than fins, which aided the bird in swimming.

Doubtful Success.

Much excitement was caused a few weeks ago in Calcutta by a particularly insanitary and evil-smelling tank suddenly changing to a perfumed one, giving off the refreshing smell of lemon.

To the natives this portended the coming of a great Indian goddess, who would arise out of the water; so the pilgrims gathered in thousands to have their sins washed away and diseases cured. A guileless youth also had been selling this holy water at five rupees per bottle, which is equal to 6s. 8d.

But soon afterward it was discovered that a large consignment of essential oils, belonging to a firm of perfumers close by, had got smashed, and afterward leaked into the tank. The natives now feel rather uncomfortable at the thought of having drunk the dirty water. It is to be hoped that they will know the smell of holy water next time they meet near a perfumer's work.—Answers.

Woman Boss of Lumbermen.

Mrs. Mary Gregory of Damariscotta, Me., is the first woman to have charge of a gang of lumbermen. She is the mother of six children and until a few months ago did all the work of cooking and caring for a gang of 22 woodsmen besides her own family. Finding that she had still many idle hours on her hands, she applied for work as woodchopper. She soon proved herself such an expert chopper and sawyer that a few weeks ago she pitted herself against the best two men of the camp. She not only did more work than either of them, but more than both together. It was soon after this that the owner of the lumber camps appointed her boss of one of his largest gangs of lumbermen.

Sculptor's Rise to Fame.

August Rodin, president of the Society of Sculptors and Painters of Paris, which recently sent a traveling collection to this country, is of peasant stock and has been compelled to fight the academic art schools every inch of the way to his present place as the most famous contemporary sculptor. He studied drawing in a private school, but was unable to gain admission to the Ecole des Beaux Arts because of his unacademic methods. He worked away in a dingy apology for a studio in a stable. After years of trial and struggle his "Age of Bronze" was finally accepted by the salon, leading eventually to fame.

Separate the Sexes.

The question was asked in Wall street the other day whether men and women clerks are to be separated from one another. The reason was that in the new offices of the Rock Island in the new Bankers' Trust company building such is the case. The women clerks, the librarians and the stenographers are on one floor and the officials, the lawyers and accountants are on another floor. No special reason for the arrangement has been given, and now many women are wondering whether the same system is to be followed throughout the financial district. It is whispered, however, that the women do better work if they are left entirely alone.—New York Press.

UNIT RULE IS VOTED DOWN

Decision Followed Long Debate on Floor of Convention.

CONSIDERED A WILSON VICTORY

Makes Use of Harmon's Name as Presidential Candidate, Doubtful —Demonstration for Jersey Governor.

Baltimore, June 27.—The Democratic national convention voted at the night session to abrogate the unit rule as to all state delegations except those where the state laws are mandatory on the subject.

This had the effect of giving Woodrow Wilson 18 votes from Ohio and may cause a break in other delegations. It was hailed as a great Wilson victory in a session that had been marked by a prolonged Wilson demonstration.

The vote was, as nearly as it could be found out, 565½ against the rule, 495 2-3 for it; 33 not voting.

The vote against the unit rule makes it doubtful if Harmon's name will go before the convention as a candidate for president. He will have only 29 out of the 48 votes in the Ohio delegation.

After the vote on the convention rules had been announced, Robert Brenner, vice-president of the New Jersey delegation, said:

"It shows the unmistakable turn of the convention toward progressivism."

A sweltering atmosphere, charged with humidity, greeted the delegates as they filed in for the night session just before 8 o'clock. Negligee was again the order of the occasion.

At 8:32 o'clock Chairman Parker dropped his gavel, the sergeant-at-arms cleared the aisles and secured order, while the chaplain began the prayer.

Immediately after the prayer Representative Covington of Maryland, chairman of the committee on rules, was recognized to present the committee's report.

The report, as read by Mr. Covington, would place the nominations for president and vice-president on the program of the convention immediately after the report of the committee on credentials and before the adoption of the platform.

The report, much to the surprise of the convention, was adopted by a viva voce vote, without opposition.

Unit Rule Was Debated.

Mr. Covington then presented the majority supplemental report of the rules committee, making the "unit rule," a rule of the convention. As reported, the rule would make a unit instruction by a state convention binding on a delegation if a majority of the delegates favored any particular candidate. Representative Henry of Texas presented a minority report which would except from the operation of this rule such delegations as are elected under state primary rules by congressional districts.

After both reports had been presented Chairman Covington opened the debate in favor of the majority report.

Mr. Covington's argument was brief and its conclusion was greeted by scattering applause.

Representative Henry then opened the debate for the minority report. He said that this report would in no way interfere with the operation of the unit rule as it has obtained heretofore.

John W. Peck of Ohio was given 20 minutes of time to support the majority report. He said that Ohio was the state most closely affected by the rule.

Peck Starts Demonstration.

A few moments later Peck referred to Gov. Wilson of New Jersey and the name started a demonstration.

A dozen pictures of Wilson appeared and were scattered through the hall. Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, who was on the platform, swung his hat above his head as he led cheers for Wilson.

The volume of sound grew steadily. From the galleries the bearers of the big "Staunton" banner came down to the floor. They hurried to the press stand and endeavored to scale the platform. One of the bearers gained the press stand tramping over the telegraph keys and heads of writers, but was seized by a newspaper man and thrown back into the crowd.

A struggle followed and for a time a serious disturbance was threatened. The police and the sergeant-at-arms were powerless against the crowd.

In the center of the hall, however, the big block of New York delegates sat calm and unmoved.

In vain Chairman Parker pounded his desk in an effort to quiet the crowd. The demonstration had then been under way more than 25 minutes, before even a semblance of order was restored. It required much pounding of gavel after this before the proceedings could be resumed.

Called for Vote.

Officially the demonstration was recorded as having lasted 33 minutes.

As the big clock at the end of the hall began to point toward 11, the delegates grew restless and cries of "Vote, vote," came from all parts of the floor.

The debate continued until 10:56 p. m., when the roll was ordered called. The whole debate had turned upon the situation in Ohio, where nine congressional districts instructed their 18 delegates for Wilson, and where the Democratic sate convention, controlled by the Harmon forces, adopted a resolution binding the state delegates to vote as a unit according to the dictates of the majority of the delegates. This majority was for Harmon.

The majority report from the committee on rules proposed to recognize the right of state conventions so to apply the unit rule. The minority report, urged by the Wilson people, proposed to abrogate the rule.

How They Voted.

The vote was on the substitution of the minority or pro-Wilson report for the majority report, a "Yes" vote being in favor of the Wilson proposition and a "No" vote against the New Jersey man. The vote by states follows:

Hooted Missouri Vote.

A chorus of hisses and "boos" greeted the announcement of Senator Stone that Missouri, Champ Clark's state, cast 29 votes against the minority report, which would favor the Wilson forces. Seven Missouri delegates voted aye.

A round of cheers swept the hall as Bryan's home state, Nebraska, voted solid 16 ayes for the Wilson report. An uproar swept the hall as the clerk called "New York."

Delegates rose in their places and watched Charles F. Murphy as he rose to make the announcement.

"New York votes 90 no," he said, and there was a chorus of jeers, hisses and cheers.

The result of the roll call as announced showed that the Wilson-Bryan forces had won the test.

The Wilson delegates began a demonstration. It was short lived, and Chairman Parker, seizing a megaphone, put the question of adopting the amended report. It was adopted by a viva voce vote.

The convention then adjourned, to reconvene at noon next day.

MRS. LARAMORE TELLS TROUBLES

Lady in Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia.

I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn.

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

LA FOLLETTE AND BRYAN CONSULT?

Persistent Report of Meeting Keeps Delegates Guessing.

ASKED TO JOIN NEW MOVEMENT

Rumored Consultation Not Denied by Either Party—Gossip of Convention Took Second Place for a Time.

Baltimore, June 27.—The Democratic convention took second place as a topic of conversation for a time during the day when a report became persistent that Senator La Follette had held a long conference with William Jennings Bryan after the latter's reversal in the temporary chairmanship fight in the convention.

It was said that the senator, who slipped into town from Washington, without heralding his arrival, had discussed in detail the third party movement and had invited Mr. Bryan to cast in his fortunes with the new progressive movement.

An air of mystery pervaded the Bryan and Nebraska headquarters and it was neither denied nor affirmed that the conference had been held, but Mr. Bryan's secretaries and the officers of the delegation "really didn't know" of the supposed consultation between the two men.

Admit But Little.

That Senator La Follette was under the same roof with Mr. Bryan was acknowledged and it was declared he had expressed his intention of coming from Washington again.

At the Wisconsin delegation's headquarters it was acknowledged that the senator had been here and that he would return. It was explained, however, that the supposed conference with Mr. Bryan was unlikely because Mr. La Follette, in the past, had always held that differences in the Republican party should be adjusted within the ranks.

Heney Arrives.

Both Bryan and anti-Bryan factions in the convention were much interested in "third party" gossip. The advent of Francis J. Heney of California who fought for Mr. Roosevelt in the Chicago convention and Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, who helped to conduct the early La Follette campaign and the reported interview with Mr. Bryan gave an impetus to the discussion.

La Follette Non-Committal.

Washington, June 27.—Senator La Follette was back in Washington from the Baltimore convention and efforts to get the senator to deny or affirm that he had conferred with Mr. Bryan or other leaders on the third party movement or any other political subject were met with a consistent refusal to talk about it.

COMMITTEE BUSY WITH PLATFORM

Full Day Was Occupied in Consideration of Ideas.

MANY PLANKS ARE SUBMITTED

New York Delegation's Draft Receiving Careful Consideration—Tilt Over Workingmen's Compensation.

Baltimore, June 27.—In a commodious room in the Armory, in which the Democratic convention is holding its meetings, the committee on resolutions began the work of preparing a platform for the consideration of the convention. The committee sat during a large part of the day and with the approach of night turned over to a subcommittee of 11 the detailed work of preparing the document for the consideration of the full body.

In addition to voting to recommend that the platform should not be presented to the convention until after the nomination of a presidential candidate the committee began a series of hearings devoted to the presentation of pleas for platform declarations. In addition to verbal suggestions, other planks were sent in, and in some instances entire platforms were presented. Among the latter was a complete draft coming from the New York delegation and another by Senator Newlands of Nevada.

Employer's Liability an Issue.

Other features of the hearings included a lively tilt between Senator Culberson and Representative W. G. Brantley of Georgia. Mr. Brantley is a member of the national employers' liability commission and he took sharp issue with some of the Nebraskan's references to workmen's compensation bills passed by that commission.

The New York platform received very careful consideration. It gives first place to the tariff, declaring it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government has "no right or power to collect tariff duties except for purposes of revenue." There is a demand that the collection of tariff taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government when honestly and economically administered.

There is a declaration for immediate revision especially as to the necessaries of life. President Taft's course in vetoing the woolen, cotton, chemical and the farmers' free list bills of the last session of congress is roundly denounced.

Rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws is promised and such additions as may be necessary to make the laws effective are promised.

Central Bank Opposed.

While opposing the establishment of a central bank the opinion is expressed that there should be legislation under Democratic auspices looking to the creation of a flexible banking law, which would prevent any small group of financiers or politicians from controlling the banks of the country.

Declaration is made for an income tax through constitutional amendment and also for the election of senators by direct vote of the people and for a single six-year term for president.

The work of the present Democratic house of representatives is highly commended.

Promise is made to maintain the Monroe doctrine and to protect American citizens at home and abroad. With evident reference to the treatment of American Jews in Russia, promise is made to the exercise of every effort to remove unjust discriminations on account of race or creed.

Mr. Newlands' draft favored the abolition of negro suffrage, the gradual reduction of the tariff and the appropriation of $50,000,000 annually for river improvement.

RESULT OF STRIKE VOTE HELD UP

Railroad Men Complete Count, But Refuse Information Pending Further Negotiations.

St. Louis, June 27.—Pending further efforts to bring about an adjustment of the trouble between the members of the Federation of Federations, and their employers, the railroads west of Chicago, the result of the referendum strike vote will not be announced. The counting of the ballots has just been completed.

Negotiations with the general managers of the railroads will be conducted by correspondence, and, it was said, that the offices of Commissioner Charles P. Neill may be solicited.

The executive committee, which counted the ballots, will meet again August 10, at a place yet to be selected.

Rush Cavalry to Border.

Washington, June 27.—Anticipating firing across the border, as soon as the retreating Mexican rebels reach Juarez, Gen. Wood ordered a squadron of the third cavalry to proceed from San Antonio to El Paso. The United States military forces at El Paso consist of the entire regiment of the second cavalry, a squadron of the third, one regiment and one battalion of infantry and a battery of field artillery.

Boost the Boy Who Stays.

Chicago, June 27.—The farmer boy, who stays at home and raises fat cattle is due to receive more publicity in the country weekly than the youth who goes to town and accepts a position that requires a "twice over shave" daily. That is what W. L. Nelson, editor of the Bunceton, Mo., Eagle told members of the National Press association.

INITIATIVE LISTS DUE JULY 5.

Will Not Receive Attention After That Date, Secretary Roach Says.

The time for filing petitions under the initiative and referendum law of this state will expire next week. Secretary of State Cornelius Roach is advised the single tax petitions will be presented Friday, but it is not known when the other petitions will be ready for filing.

Among the petitions in circulation are the four Republican lists under the heading of workingmen's compensation act, home rule police law, senatorial redistricting law, and a home rule liquor law. The single taxers are submitting an amendment of their own, providing ultimately for the exemption of all personal property and putting the entire tax on land values. A petition also is being circulated to place the proposition of woman suffrage on the November ballot.

Another petition provides for amending a section of the state constitution so as to permit counties and cities to make gifts and donations to private individuals if they choose to do so.

All petitions must be filed four months before the general election day. This will be July 4, which, being a legal holiday, will result in extending the time to July 5, although Secretary Roach is disposed to insist that the petitions should be filed July 3.

"There are prospects for ten or a dozen measures going on the official ballot this year under the provisions of the 'initiative law,'" said Mr. Roach today. "The last day for legal filing is near. All interests backing the various measures to be submitted seem to be delaying the presentation of their petitions to the secretary of state till the last hour of the last day.

"Unnecessary delay may cause some of these proposed measures to lose a place on the official ballot, as I propose to take a sufficient and reasonable time to discharge the duty that rests upon me in this connection and pass upon the legal sufficiency of all petitions submitted before filing any on any proposed subject.

"Petitions submitted the last legal filing day will not necessarily be filed on that date unless found in proper form. Reasonable time will be required and taken to determine these facts before the documents will be filed."

Spoke at Normal.

Rev. Claud J. Miller of the Christian church delivered an address to the members of the Normal Y. M. C. A. Thursday, taking for his subject "The Problems of the College Man."

WAS 96 AT 2 P. M.

MERCURY POINTED THERE THIS AFTERNOON.

HOTTEST DAY OF SUMMER

A Good Rain Looked For by Evening —Things Are Mighty Hot Politically and Weatherly.

Today is the hottest day of the summer, and as the summer has only commenced, indications point to many sweltering days during the heated period of 1912.

Last year this section of the United States was visited by torrid summer, and although the season began earlier in 1911, yet there can be no doubt that in torridness this year of political upheavals will not be behind the placid months of 1911.

Today the morning was quite warm, but as the sun neared the middle of the heavens the temperature grew oppressively hot, and at 12 o'clock the thermometer registered 95, although it was only 61 at 7 o'clock and 87 at 10 o'clock. At 2 o'clock this afternoon it was 96.

The mercury yesterday went to 94 degrees above zero.

Local weather prophets say that the intense heat of today will bring a shower, and it is to be hoped that these prognostications are correct. A good shower would be welcome. All vegetation needs moisture, and there will be none who will find fault if we get a good rain late this afternoon or this evening.

WILSON PUT IT OVER

NEW JERSEY EXECUTIVE TAKES FALL OUT OF MISSOURIAN.

SEN. JAMES IS CHAIRMAN

Convention Adjourned to 8 o'Clock When Nominations for President Will Take Place.

To Meet at 8 o'Clock.

The convention adjourned at 3:45 p. m., to meet at 8 o'clock this evening, when nominating speeches will be made and balloting for candidates will start.

James as Chairman.

The report of the permanent organization committee was adopted and Ollie James of Kentucky selected as permanent chairman of the convention. While Mr. James was going after President Taft for vetoing the Democratic tariff Mrs. Taft, who was present at the convention, smiles. An indirect reference to Bryan by Chairman James caused an ovation.

Not a Part of United States.

John Sharp Williams of Mississippi raises point of order that Philippine islands are not entitled to representation in the convention, as the islands are not a part of the United States. Point of order was sustained by the convention.

Seated Wilson Delegates.

At 3 p. m., at Baltimore, the minority report of the credentials committee was adopted by a vote of 629 to 415. This seated the Wilson delegates from South Dakota, or ten in number. The Illinois and New York delegations voted solidly for adoption, showing indication of switch to Wilson.

Convention Called to Order.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Baltimore, Md., June 27.—The convention was called to order today by Chairman Alton B. Parker at 12:44. Roland B. Harris of Philadelphia presented the minority report of credentials committee to seat Wilson delegates from South Dakota, the committee having decided at a meeting held last night, by a majority vote, to seat the ten Clark delegates from South Dakota.

Ex-Governor McCorkle of West Virginia led the debate against the minority report of South Dakota.

Congressman Theodore Bell of California, temporary chairman of the last Democratic convention held at Baltimore, again exposes Bryan by making closing argument for majority report of credentials committee on South Dakota contests. Mr. Bell was interrupted by a demonstration started in the galleries.

Governor Cochran, who is vigorously supporting Champ Clark for president, says that the ten delegates from South Dakota should have been for Clark instead of Wilson. Cochran is interrupted in his address by Congressman Henry of Texas. Governor Cochran concludes his address at 1:13 p. m., and Congressman Henry yields to delegates from Texas.

The convention hall was crowded long before the convention was called to order. The weather was very hot and it was cloudy.

After credentials committee fight on South Dakota contests is settled, the next order of business will be the report of the committee on permanent organization, electing the permanent officers of the convention. Ollie James of Kentucky has been selected by the committee for this place and will probably be selected by the convention.

It is expected that nominating speeches will be late this afternoon or tonight.

At the afternoon session of the convention Mrs. W. H. Taft, wife of President Taft, attended the convention and was the guest of Mrs. Norman Mack of New York. Mrs. Taft received quite an ovation when she entered the convention hall.

At 1:26 p. m. Mr. Lamcharch of Louisiana speaks, and concludes amid loud cries of "vote, vote, vote." J. E. Bell of Indiana, chairman of credentials committee, speaks and is followed by J. D. Knox of Minnesota.

The convention was in great disorder. A Wilson demonstration was started, and many delegates paraded around the hall with Wilson banners and cries of "Give us Wilson and we will give you Minnesota and New York."

A rival boom for Clark was started, but not as enthusiastic as the Wilson boom, and results in fight floor. Underwood delegates join in tumult and New York delegates split, a portion joining Wilson parade.

The police stop fight quickly of delegates of rival candidates from opposition parades. State standards were torn from the floor and carried to rallying points.

Cries for Bryan being raised in all sections of the galleries during the uproar in the convention.

The demonstration continued twenty-three minutes. Woman attempts to start another by parading through aisles with Clark banners, but it fails.

Galleries and delegates hissed Bell of California down and he did not complete his statement. The roll call on the minority report was ordered.

Convention News Tonight.

Nominations wil lbe made late this afternoon or tonight at Baltimore, and The Democrat-Forum will receive bulletins of the news.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED, WHO WILL NOMINATE CHAMP CL[illegible]

STONE VS. BRYAN

MISSOURI SENATOR MANIPULATED VOTE AGAINST COMMONER

IN CLARK'S INTEREST

Not Regarded as Reactionary Movement—A Bid for New York Support of Missouri's Candidate.

The Republic's special correspondence from Baltimore contains the lowing, which is of special inte the friends of Champ Clark:

"Impartial analysis demon that the Parker majority d mean a 'reactionary' majority. It failed simply because 228 delegates from Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, Alaska and the District of Columbia, who are instructed for Clark, voted for Parker.

"This was brought about deliberately by Clark's managers, who divided their votes between the candidates for the chairmanship. It was a strategical move, designed both to aid the speaker's nomination and to hold the party together.

"Missouri gave 22 to Parker and 14 to Bryan. Stated in terms of cold politics, Senator Stone, by thus casting nearly two-thirds of the state's 36 votes for the conservative candidate, made a deliberate 'bid' for New York's support for Clark in the later stages of the convention. There is every r son to believe the bid was not t[illegible] away and that in due time Murphy will cast 90 votes for Clark.

A Strategic Move.

"But viewed more broadly, Missouri's action does not mean that two-thirds of Missouri's delegates are nonprogressive. In fact, the Missourians, when assured of Clark's success, will co-operate to put him upon the most progressive platform that can be devised. Despite the rejection of Bryan by the convention the Missouri leaders desire his election as chairman of the resolutions committee.

"What was true of Missouri was true of many other of the Clark delegates included in the 228 mentioned. The Clark delegations from Iowa, Colorado and Utah divided evenly. The Massachusetts and West Virginia delegates divided almost evenly, and practically all the Clark states split on the vote.

Says Clark is Probable.

"In the event of Champ Clark's nomination, which last night seemed probable, the convention is expected to look to New York for his running mate.

"Quite a little talk for William Randolph Hearst has been heard, but Mr. Hearst himself declares that he doesn't want and would not accept second place. He is here with a fleet of journalists and political lieutenants, all working in the interest of Clark, and this gave rise to the story that the newspaper publisher was seeking second honors.

"William J. Gaynor, Tammany's choice for the presidency, is considered vice presidential timber by some delegations.

"Justice D. D. O'Gorman is another New Yorker whose name is frequently mentioned.

"John W. Kern of Indiana would not be averse to making the race again, and his action in refusing to get into the temporary chairmanship of the fight rather indicates his willingness to run. Thomas R. Marshall of the same state, one of the 'favorite sons' for the presidency, is also in the list of availables."

Returned From Auto Trip.

Mrs. Frank L. Garrett and her sisters, Misses Gertrude and LaVera Condon, returned Wednesday night from a several days' visit near Fairfax with their cousin, Mrs. Jan Cook, and Mr. and Mrs. Preston I They made the trip to and from Fairfax with A. O. Mason, who we deliver a new car to their cousin Cook. Mr. Mason sold several cars while there.

Chinch Bug and Its Control.

The chinch bug is busy again this summer in west central and central Missouri, collecting its annual dues from the farmers. Now is the time for the farmer to rebel; not a week or two later, but today. They have already sapped much of the wheat and rye of that region and are now on foot, the old ones as well as the pesky young "red coats," moving into the corn fields. If they succeed in reaching the corn fields they will continue to lay waste to these, and later give rise to a second regiment of young "red coats" which in turn will continue to feed and mature by frosts, when they hide in rubbish, corn shocks and deep down in the clumps of grass in meadows, pastures and waste lands. Here they sleep until next spring, when they will re-appear in even greater numbers than this year.

Now is the time to act! Throw up barriers in front of their line of march. Plow a strip ten or fifteen feet wide and thoroughly pulverize it to form a fine dust mulch. This serves as an excellent barrier, though it is well to run over this each day with a drag to make sure none cross. A deep furrow in which a log is dragged is also good. In case of rain run a narrow line of tar or road oil as a barrier and trap them in post holes. By all means keep them from the corn. If they have already gotten into corn and are clustered on the first few rows, destroy them either by spraying with coal oil emulsion or soak cobs in oil, light them and use as a torch to flash up and down the stalks, thereby burning them. In severe cases it may be necessary to give up a portion of the field and establish a barrier some distance in front of them out in the field. Don't throw up your hands and give over the corn field to them without a struggle. Forget about the chinch bug disease, for it cannot help you unless the weather is favorable and the spores of the disease are present by the millions in your field already waiting for warm, rainy weather. Then this fall co-operate in carrying out a systematic burning of all fields and waste lands where the bugs are collected for the winter.

Heart Hunter

By Izola Forrester

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Russell did not look up at the schoolhouse window when he drew rein. He knew that she could see him from her desk, and the outer door was wide open. It was well after four, and all the children had vanished down the four roads leading from the schoolhouse corner. They were quite alone, if one excepted the red squirrel who was tenant for life in the elm that was king of the playground.

It was half a mile to the nearest farmhouse. All about lay June fields, rich in lush grass ready almost for mowing. The air was golden, warm, hazy, lazy, wooing one to forget duty and day's work. Russell was heavily burdened with both at present. As superintendent of schools in Laverne county, it devolved on his shoulders to let the teacher go at the little Flaxy Bend district, because of inattention to duty and general laxity of conduct.

That was exactly the wording of the charges in Mrs. Deacon Mabry's letter that reposed in his coat pocket. He didn't intend to show it to the girl.

So simple it seemed, so hard it was to do. He had fought against it for nearly a week, remembering her upturned, earnest face, so warm and tender in its brunette tinting, the big, brown eyes, and childish mouth that drooped wistfully at the corners, the dark hair bound smoothly around the small head, with a big, black velvet bow on one side. That bow had been an offense to the enemy even, at least on one side.

"She ain't stiddy enough to teach," old Mrs. Mabry had insisted. "I taught considerable after Myron and me were married, but I was stiddy. It's a known fact that she's settled four of the boys this winter."

"Settled them? You mean expelled them?"

"No, I don't, Mr. Russell. I mean just what I say. She's carried on girl-fashion with Nate Hoskins and

"I'm Afraid They Don't Like Me Very Well—Do They?"

Benny Everitt and Walter Bennings, and even with Lonnie Murray, and they've every one of them lost their heads over her and proposed, and she's refused them all."

"Well?" Russell tried to speak mildly, remembering the various attractions of the aforesaid four boys, "maybe she didn't intend to have them take her seriously, Mrs. Mabry."

"And if she didn't, then she's light-minded, and a heart hunter, if I do say it myself, Mr. Russell. That's what we always used to call them, heart hunters, and their minds don't go any further than hunting them, and letting them go as soon as they're caught."

Russell remembered the whole conversation now as he stepped into the little shadowy schoolroom, low-ceiled, cool, with fern boxes at the windows and bunches of June roses on the desks. Rose was her name, too, he remembered—Rose Phillips. She turned her head now, a quick smile of welcome and surprise on her face.

"Did you come to wish me good-by?" she asked.

Russell could not help but smile back. He laid his cap on one of the first row desks and stood looking at her as he drew off his gloves. She could not have been over eighteen. In spite of what the school committee had reported, he knew that the little school had made actual progress under her care and tuition during the past term. He knew the children loved her dearly. The little room itself bore witness to her influence. It had been a barren place before her coming. A few old yellowed maps hung on the walls. There was a wheezy melodeon in one corner, with most of the ivory off the keys and one pedal broken. The stove was a little, inadequate drum affair, with three legs to stand on.

Since her coming the whole place had been changed. The children had given little entertainments and earned money for a new stove, for new globes and window boxes, and little fresh muslin curtains at the windows. At the school examinations they had led the other township schools, and before her days, Flaxy Bend district had been a problem in education.

"Yes," said Russell, with almost a sigh, "I came to say good-by."

She waited a minute, chin raised, eyes questioning.

"Where did you tell me your home was, Miss Phillips?" he asked, leaning over the top of the tall desk, and fingering a pink rose that was nearest to him.

"Vermont. It's only a little ... who ... place where the t... br... ar... are flagged. W... Maryvil... Crossing."

"I suppose yo... home."

"Not so very." ...tantly, with a li... shoulders. "You see, I have a stepfather, and I am the only child from the first marriage, and there are seven little ones now besides. They don't miss me a bit, unless it's a good miss."

"Why did you come way down here in the country?"

"Because I was in a hurry to go to work. The city schools won't take you unless you've been through Normal, you know. I like it out here. The work was hard, but the victory was so much greater, and I do think the children love me."

Russell caught the little wistful touch in her voice.

"The old folks are peculiar, aren't they? Hard to get along with."

"I'm afraid they don't like me very well—do they?"

"They say you're a good teacher, but—"

Rose waited and looked up at him quickly. Her brown hair was very near, with its soft satiny braids. Before he really meant to, he had tucked the pink rose among them.

"It looks much better there," he added, and wondered why his own pulses were racing suddenly, like brooks in April.

"But what? Please—please tell me?" she pleaded, drawing back, but not removing the rose. "What do they say?"

"They say you're a heart hunter."

She leaned back her head and sighed, her hands clasped back of the rose, her eyes looking past him out of the first open window.

"They mean the boys, I suppose, Nate and the rest. Could I help it? Now, truly, could I, Mr. Russell? You know just what boys are. They'd come here every day, and bring all sorts of things to me that I didn't want. Why, Lonnie even used to bring me fox pelts for a cloak, of all things. Boys are always boys, and they get over it so quickly. I was just as nice to them as I could be."

"I am not blaming you—nor them," said Russell a bit unsteadily. "Only I agree with the deacon's wife that you are a very dangerous and disturbing influence to have around these peaceful parts."

The tears glistened in her eyes. "Oh, you don't really mean that?" she said pleadingly. "Are you trying to tell me I cannot teach here again?"

Russell stared awkwardly down at her head, as she leaned it on folded arms, and her shoulders shook with sobs.

"I've tried so hard, and the children all love me," she said brokenly. "I didn't want to go back home at all. I was going to board here all summer, and rest—"

Then suddenly it dawned on Neil Russell why he had driven ten miles that afternoon to make all fit and due explanations to the teacher instead of writing. He knew just why he had thought of nothing but her tender lips and dark eyes and low contralto voice for weeks past. He knew why he had saved every scrap of writing she had ever sent him, and why he carried in an inner pocket a little tan suede glove he had found beside her chair after a board meeting one day. Oh, yes, he knew now, and he imprisoned both her hands in his and raised them to his lips.

"Rose," he said. "Stop crying. I've brought you another heart, dear."

She stopped sobbing, but did not raise her head.

"I haven't any one in the world myself. I came up here from New York and got along well. There's enough saved in the bank to buy us a good home in the fall. I think I could make you happy, Rose, if I may wear you, dear."

"What would you tell the deacon's wife and—and—all the rest?" she asked faintly.

"That I had to dismiss you because I couldn't let my wife work," he whispered. "Won't that do for a good excuse?"

REFUSED THE CHAIRMANSHIP

BRYAN THINKS COMMITTEE JOB A TRAP.

Leaders Surprised at Action of Nebraskan—Senator Kern of Indiana Given the Place.

Baltimore, June 27.—An attempt by the conservative forces, now in control, to swing William J. Bryan into line by making him chairman of the resolutions committee, which is drafting a platform, failed. Not only did Bryan refuse, but he made it plain in refusing that he feared the committee had been packed.

Cautious advisers of the Nebraskan argued against his accepting the chairmanship on the ground that the attempt to have him draft the platform was a poorly concealed plot to commit him in advance to the subsequent act of the convention and to any nominee willing to accept what would be known as the "Bryan platform."

The leaders were plainly disconcerted by the action of Bryan. This disconcertion became chagrin when Bryan told his lieutenant, Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, that he had refused the honor because he "intended to play national, not ward, politics."

When the full committee assembled Bryan said he had not refused the charmanship with any desire to disturb harmony.

"I acted," he said, "rather in the interests of harmony."

Ex-Congressman Fithian of Illinois then suggested that Senator Kern the Indiana representative on the committee, be elected. Kern at first was going to refuse also, but finally consented to serve and he was unanimously chosen with T. J. Walsh of Colorado as secretary. The committee immediately went into executive session to prepare the platform.

Prison for Suffragettes.

London, June 27.—The three suffragettes who smashed the glass door panels in St. Stephen's hall while trying to gain admission to the house of commons were sentenced by the police magistrate each to two months' imprisonment.

Youthful Bigotry.

"There is a thoughtful boy in an Antrim village who listened one Sunday to a statement made by his Sunday school teacher that God had created all things, and all men. 'Did God,' he asked, at last, 'make the Papists?' He had been taught to reverence the Almighty, and it seemed impossible that He could have been guilty of that. The teacher assured him that God had really made even them. The boy pondered the information for a minute, and then gave his opinion briefly and forcibly. 'He'll rue it yet,' he said."—"The Lighter Side of Irish Life," by George A. Birmingham.

The Reason.

"He makes but a bald attempt at a living."

"How is that?"

"He is a hair specialist."

No Question About That.

GOOD GOODS AT RIGHT PRICES

Wabash Invests $150,000.00 in New Shop Machinery.

The Wabash has purchased a large number of modern machine tools to be installed at their main shops at Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Springfield, Ill., and Moberly, Mo.

These tools are of the latest designs, consisting of large locomotive driving wheels lathes, turret lathes of different sizes, vertical boring mills, etc. Modern 96-inch, 600-ton hydraulic driving wheel presses. Rapid production horizontal milling machine to be used for the manufacturing of locomotive connecting rods for the entire system. Oxy-acetylene welding plants will be installed at all main shops.

In connection with the purchase of this machinery, it is interesting to note what the Bowman-Blackman Machine Tool Co. of St. Louis has to say:

"The Wabash railroad has just purchased a large lot of machine tools. The way the deal was handled by the Wabash has drawn much favorable comment in the machine tool trade. Enough time was taken to investigate right, all sellers were given courteous and attentive hearings, and the orders were placed on a basis of the machines' earning power alone.

"This course is in marked contrast to that still followed in some railroad quarters of buying machines in "lump" like so much lumber, from the one or two houses that can bid that way; of ignoring the elemental facts of machine efficiency values, squelching initiative in shop men, and getting the resentment of the competent machine tool houses thus shut out.

"As usual the Wabash is to the front in advanced ideas. This machine tool incident is one more constructive move to the credit of the liberal ... ed, alert and far-seeing men at ... bank, the Wabash."

GREAT AUK'S VALUABLE EGG

One Recently Sold at Auction in London for $1,500—Bird Is Now Extinct.

An egg of the great auk, or garefowl, a bird now extinct, was sold at auction in London for a sum equivalent to $1,500.

Not all great auk's eggs are alike. In length they vary from four and one-eighth inches to five inches. The greater number found have a white ground, but others are of various shades of buff. In some cases the markings are spots, shown in blotches or lines.

It is said that no living auk has been seen since 1844. The birds were exterminated by the ruthless traffic in their eggs and skins, although their numbers, especially on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts, where once they were very numerous, were greatly reduced by their wholesale slaughter for food.

The most remarkable characteristic of the great auk was it inability to fly. Its wings were scarcely more than fins, which aided the bird in swimming.

Doubtful Success.

Much excitement was caused a few weeks ago in Calcutta by a particularly insanitary and evil-smelling tank suddenly changing to a perfumed one, giving off the refreshing smell of lemon.

To the natives this portended the coming of a great Indian goddess, who would arise out of the water; so the pilgrims gathered in thousands to have their sins washed away and diseases cured. A guileless youth also had been selling this holy water at five rupees per bottle, which is equal to 6s. 8d.

But soon afterward it was discovered that a large consignment of essential oils, belonging to a firm of perfumers close by, had got smashed, and afterward leaked into the tank. The natives now feel rather uncomfortable at the thought of having drunk the dirty water. It is to be hoped that they will know the smell of holy water next time they meet near a perfumer's work.—Answers.

Woman Boss of Lumbermen.

Mrs. Mary Gregory of Damariscotta, Me., is the first woman to have charge of a gang of lumbermen. She is the mother of six children and until a few months ago did all the work of cooking and caring for a gang of 22 woodsmen besides her own family. Finding that she had still many idle hours on her hands, she applied for work as woodchopper. She soon proved herself such an expert chopper and sawyer that a few weeks ago she pitted herself against the best two men of the camp. She not only did more work than either of them, but more than both together. It was soon after this that the owner of the lumber camps appointed her boss of one of his largest gangs of lumbermen.

Sculptor's Rise to Fame.

August Rodin, president of the Society of Sculptors and Painters of Paris, which recently sent a traveling collection to this country, is of peasant stock and has been compelled to fight the academic art schools every inch of the way to his present place as the most famous contemporary sculptor. He studied drawing in a private school, but was unable to gain admission to the Ecole des Beaux Arts because of his unacademic methods. He worked away in a dingy apology for a studio in a stable. After years of trial and struggle his "Age of Bronze" was finally accepted by the salon, leading eventually to fame.

Separate the Sexes.

The question was asked in Wall street the other day whether men and women clerks are to be separated from one another. The reason was that in the new offices of the Rock Island in the new Bankers' Trust company building such is the case. The women clerks, the librarians and the stenographers are on one floor and the officials, the lawyers and accountants are on another floor. No special reason for the arrangement has been given, and now many women are wondering whether the same system is to be followed throughout the financial district. It is whispered, however, that the women do better work if they are left entirely alone.—New York Press.

Hits 'Em Awful Hard.

How would you like to kiss some of these old galoots that sit around this town anyhow? asks the editor of the Gentry Sentinel. And if it is a lady that is reading these lines, I can imagine how her delicate senses recoil at the suggestion. There they are with tobacco spit running down their chins, their breath smelling like a slop keg with the fumes of tobacco, whisky, beer and unkempt teeth intermingling. Boh! Nasty, isn't it—yet the time was when every girl in the country hugged and kissed him, with such exclamations: "Ain't he sweet?" "He's just too cute for anything!" "Isn't he a darling?" UNIT RULE IS VOTED DOWN

Decision Followed Long Debate on Floor of Convention.

CONSIDERED A WILSON VICTORY

Makes Use of Harmon's Name as Presidential Candidate, Doubtful —Demonstration for Jersey Governor.

Baltimore, June 27.—The Democratic national convention voted at the night session to abrogate the unit rule as to all state delegations except those where the state laws are mandatory on the subject.

This had the effect of giving Woodrow Wilson 18 votes from Ohio and may cause a break in other delegations. It was hailed as a great Wilson victory in a session that had been marked by a prolonged Wilson demonstration.

The vote was, as nearly as it could be found out, 565½ against the rule, 495 2-3 for it; 33 not voting.

The vote against the unit rule makes it doubtful if Harmon's name will go before the convention as a candidate for president. He will have only 29 out of the 48 votes in the Ohio delegation.

After the vote on the convention rules had been announced, Robert Brenner, vice-president of the New Jersey delegation, said:

"It shows the unmistakable turn of the convention toward progressivism."

A sweltering atmosphere, charged with humidity, greeted the delegates as they filed in for the night session just before 8 o'clock. Negligee was again the order of the occasion.

At 8:32 o'clock Chairman Parker dropped his gavel, the sergeant-at-arms cleared the aisles and secured order, while the chaplain began the prayer.

Immediately after the prayer Representative Covington of Maryland, chairman of the committee on rules, was recognized to present the committee's report.

The report, as read by Mr. Covington, would place the nominations for president and vice-president on the program of the convention immediately after the report of the committee on credentials and before the adoption of the platform.

The report, much to the surprise of the convention, was adopted by a viva voce vote, without opposition.

Unit Rule Was Debated.

Mr. Covington then presented the majority supplemental report of the rules committee, making the "unit rule," a rule of the convention. As reported, the rule would make a unit instruction by a state convention binding on a delegation if a majority of the delegates favored any particular candidate. Representative Henry of Texas presented a minority report which would except from the operation of this rule such delegations as are elected under state primary rules by congressional districts.

After both reports had been presented Chairman Covington opened the debate in favor of the majority report.

Mr. Covington's argument was brief and its conclusion was greeted by scattering applause.

Representative Henry then opened the debate for the minority report. He said that this report would in no way interfere with the operation of the unit rule as it has obtained heretofore.

John W. Peck of Ohio was given 20 minutes of time to support the majority report. He said that Ohio was the state most closely affected by the rule.

Peck Starts Demonstration.

A few moments later Peck referred to Gov. Wilson of New Jersey and the name started a demonstration.

A dozen pictures of Wilson appeared and were scattered through the hall. Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, who was on the platform, swung his hat above his head as he led cheers for Wilson.

The volume of sound grew steadily. From the galleries the bearers of the big "Staunton" banner came down to the floor. They hurried to the press stand and endeavored to scale the platform. One of the bearers gained the press stand tramping over the telegraph keys and heads of writers, but was seized by a newspaper man and thrown back into the crowd.

A struggle followed and for a time a serious disturbance was threatened. The police and the sergeant-at-arms were powerless against the crowd.

In the center of the hall, however, the big block of New York delegates sat calm and unmoved.

In vain Chairman Parker pounded his desk in an effort to quiet the crowd. The demonstration had then been under way more than 25 minutes, before even a semblance of order was restored. It required much pounding of gavel after this before the proceedings could be resumed.

Called for Vote.

Officially the demonstration was recorded as having lasted 33 minutes.

As the big clock at the end of the hall began to point toward 11, the delegates grew restless and cries of "Vote, vote," came from all parts of the floor.

The debate continued until 10:56 p. m., when the roll was ordered called. The whole debate had turned upon the situation in Ohio, where nine congressional districts instructed their 18 delegates for Wilson, and where the Democratic sate convention, controlled by the Harmon forces, adopted a resolution binding the state delegates to vote as a unit according to the dictates of the majority of the delegates. This majority was for Harmon.

The majority report from the committee on rules proposed to recognize the right of state conventions so to apply the unit rule. The minority report, urged by the Wilson people, proposed to abrogate the rule.

How They Voted.

The vote was on the substitution of the minority or pro-Wilson report for the majority report, a "Yes" vote being in favor of the Wilson proposition and a "No" vote against the New Jersey man. The vote by states follows:

Hooted Missouri Vote.

A chorus of hisses and "boos" greeted the announcement of Senator Stone that Missouri, Champ Clark's state, cast 29 votes against the minority report, which would favor the Wilson forces. Seven Missouri delegates voted aye.

A round of cheers swept the hall as Bryan's home state, Nebraska, voted solid 16 ayes for the Wilson report. An uproar swept the hall as the clerk called "New York."

Delegates rose in their places and watched Charles F. Murphy as he rose to make the announcement.

"New York votes 90 no," he said, and there was a chorus of jeers, hisses and cheers.

The result of the roll call as announced showed that the Wilson-Bryan forces had won the test.

The Wilson delegates began a demonstration. It was short lived, and Chairman Parker, seizing a megaphone, put the question of adopting the amended report. It was adopted by a viva voce vote.

The convention then adjourned, to reconvene at noon next day.

MRS. LARAMORE TELLS TROUBLES

Lady in Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia.

I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn.

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

LA FOLLETTE AND BRYAN CONSULT?

Persistent Report of Meeting Keeps Delegates Guessing.

ASKED TO JOIN NEW MOVEMENT

Rumored Consultation Not Denied by Either Party—Gossip of Convention Took Second Place for a Time.

Baltimore, June 27.—The Democratic convention took second place as a topic of conversation for a time during the day when a report became persistent that Senator La Follette had held a long conference with William Jennings Bryan after the latter's reversal in the temporary chairmanship fight in the convention.

It was said that the senator, who slipped into town from Washington, without heralding his arrival, had discussed in detail the third party movement and had invited Mr. Bryan to cast in his fortunes with the new progressive movement.

An air of mystery pervaded the Bryan and Nebraska headquarters and it was neither denied nor affirmed that the conference had been held, but Mr. Bryan's secretaries and the officers of the delegation "really didn't know" of the supposed consultation between the two men.

Admit But Little.

That Senator La Follette was under the same roof with Mr. Bryan was acknowledged and it was declared he had expressed his intention of coming from Washington again.

At the Wisconsin delegation's headquarters it was acknowledged that the senator had been here and that he would return. It was explained, however, that the supposed conference with Mr. Bryan was unlikely because Mr. La Follette, in the past, had always held that differences in the Republican party should be adjusted within the ranks.

Heney Arrives.

Both Bryan and anti-Bryan factions in the convention were much interested in "third party" gossip. The advent of Francis J. Heney of California who fought for Mr. Roosevelt in the Chicago convention and Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, who helped to conduct the early La Follette campaign and the reported interview with Mr. Bryan gave an impetus to the discussion.

La Follette Non-Committal.

Washington, June 27.—Senator La Follette was back in Washington from the Baltimore convention and efforts to get the senator to deny or affirm that he had conferred with Mr. Bryan or other leaders on the third party movement or any other political subject were met with a consistent refusal to talk about it.

COMMITTEE BUSY WITH PLATFORM

Full Day Was Occupied in Consideration of Ideas.

MANY PLANKS ARE SUBMITTED

New York Delegation's Draft Receiving Careful Consideration—Tilt Over Workingmen's Compensation.

Baltimore, June 27.—In a commodious room in the Armory, in which the Democratic convention is holding its meetings, the committee on resolutions began the work of preparing a platform for the consideration of the convention. The committee sat during a large part of the day and with the approach of night turned over to a subcommittee of 11 the detailed work of preparing the document for the consideration of the full body.

In addition to voting to recommend that the platform should not be presented to the convention until after the nomination of a presidential candidate the committee began a series of hearings devoted to the presentation of pleas for platform declarations. In addition to verbal suggestions, other planks were sent in, and in some instances entire platforms were presented. Among the latter was a complete draft coming from the New York delegation and another by Senator Newlands of Nevada.

Employer's Liability an Issue.

Other features of the hearings included a lively tilt between Senator Culberson and Representative W. G. Brantley of Georgia. Mr. Brantley is a member of the national employers' liability commission and he took sharp issue with some of the Nebraskan's references to workmen's compensation bills passed by that commission.

The New York platform received very careful consideration. It gives first place to the tariff, declaring it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government has "no right or power to collect tariff duties except for purposes of revenue." There is a demand that the collection of tariff taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government when honestly and economically administered.

There is a declaration for immediate revision especially as to the necessaries of life. President Taft's course in vetoing the woolen, cotton, chemical and the farmers' free list bills of the last session of congress is roundly denounced.

Rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws is promised and such additions as may be necessary to make the laws effective are promised.

Central Bank Opposed.

While opposing the establishment of a central bank the opinion is expressed that there should be legislation under Democratic auspices looking to the creation of a flexible banking law, which would prevent any small group of financiers or politicians from controlling the banks of the country.

Declaration is made for an income tax through constitutional amendment and also for the election of senators by direct vote of the people and for a single six-year term for president.

The work of the present Democratic house of representatives is highly commended.

Promise is made to maintain the Monroe doctrine and to protect American citizens at home and abroad. With evident reference to the treatment of American Jews in Russia, promise is made to the exercise of every effort to remove unjust discriminations on account of race or creed.

Mr. Newlands' draft favored the abolition of negro suffrage, the gradual reduction of the tariff and the appropriation of $50,000,000 annually for river improvement.

RESULT OF STRIKE VOTE HELD UP

Railroad Men Complete Count, But Refuse Information Pending Further Negotiations.

St. Louis, June 27.—Pending further efforts to bring about an adjustment of the trouble between the members of the Federation of Federations, and their employers, the railroads west of Chicago, the result of the referendum strike vote will not be announced. The counting of the ballots has just been completed.

Negotiations with the general managers of the railroads will be conducted by correspondence, and, it was said, that the offices of Commissioner Charles P. Neill may be solicited.

The executive committee, which counted the ballots, will meet again August 10, at a place yet to be selected.

Rush Cavalry to Border.

Washington, June 27.—Anticipating firing across the border, as soon as the retreating Mexican rebels reach Juarez, Gen. Wood ordered a squadron of the third cavalry to proceed from San Antonio to El Paso. The United States military forces at El Paso consist of the entire regiment of the second cavalry, a squadron of the third, one regiment and one battalion of infantry and a battery of field artillery.

Boost the Boy Who Stays.

Chicago, June 27.—The farmer boy, who stays at home and raises fat cattle is due to receive more publicity in the country weekly than the youth who goes to town and accepts a position that requires a "twice over shave" daily. That is what W. L. Nelson, editor of the Buncetou, Mo., Eagle told members of the National Press association.
